

This is not good for the consumer. Companies that are simply allowed to buy out the competition are not innovating; they are merely throwing their weight around. Please do not let this technology sector become as stagnant as the PC OS sector has been for the past 15-20 years. Only now, with the advent of smart phones and tablets is Microsoft being forced to be more innovative. Two companies will not help bring more cell coverage to Americans, only higher prices and less innovation. Look at how fast the industry has been forced to move because of Sprint and their 4G network. Please do not let this merger happen.
